

The Lion Women of Tehran

The Street

The Berry Pickers

Bookshelf Bingo

A book by an author whose first language is not English	A book of poems	A science fiction book	A nonfiction book on a topic you knew little about Goodnight Irene	A book written in the last two years After OZ
A book that taught you about a faith different from the one you practice	A book by an African American man The Violin Conspiracy	A YA fiction book that you immediately recommended to someone else The Do-over	A book someone two generations older than you recommended West w/ Giraffes	A book by an indigenous person
A book a young child recommended	A book that taught you about refugees or immigrants	FREE READ	A book by someone who identifies with the disability community True Biz	A book in translation
A book you literally couldn't put down Fourth Wing	A children's book The Million Dollar Strike	A book set in a developing country and written by an author who lives (or lived) in that country	A book by a Muslim author	A book by a local author
A book written over 100 years ago	A book of short stories	A memoir about someone whose lived experience is very different from yours Hillbilly	A book by an African American woman	A book with a protagonist or by an author who identifies with the LGBTQ+ community

Rules

- Only write in the books you have recently read or taught. Recent = in the last year
- You may only use a title in one cell. For example, while Malala Yousafzai's We Are Displaced would fit in several categories. If you have recently read or taught this book, you may only use it once.
- Color code:
 - Black ink = books you've read recently
 - Red ink = book recommendations from peers
 - For teachers: Blue ink = books you've taught recently

Elegy: A memoir of a family & culture in crisis

Stars in ya Eyes