To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to write this letter in support of Tatyana Dunbar as she pursues certification as a Professional Developer for the Strategic Instruction Model (SIM). I have had the opportunity to observe Mrs. Dunbar implementing the Fundamentals of Sentence Writing and Paragraph Writing strategies in her special education resource classroom. She effectively uses these learning strategies to help students achieve their individualized writing goals.

Under her guidance, students are developing foundational writing skills that not only support their progress within the special education setting but also translate to success in the general education curriculum. Their improvement in writing performance is a testament to Mrs. Dunbar's skill and dedication.

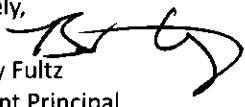

Mrs. Dunbar consistently seeks opportunities to distinguish herself professionally. She actively shares effective practices with colleagues and takes initiative in leading professional learning communities. Her passion for teaching is matched by a deep commitment to her professional growth, which ultimately benefits all students she serves.

At MCHS, we are committed to the continued development of our educators, and we fully support Mrs. Dunbar's post-institute apprenticeship with a certified SIM Professional Developer. We also support her ongoing professional learning as she works toward becoming a certified SIM Professional Developer herself. Our long-term goal is to have an in-house expert who can train current and future special education teachers in evidence-based writing curricula tailored to meet the needs of students with disabilities, both within our district and beyond.

I strongly believe that Mrs. Dunbar would be an excellent addition to the SIM Professional Developer program. Her dedication to continuous improvement and her desire to make a meaningful impact make her a valuable asset to any professional learning cohort.

Please feel free to contact me if you need any additional information.

Sincerely,

Bradley Fultz
